Gains Two New Librarians

Goodman South Madison

Farrah McDaniel, Community Engagement Specialist, and Will Glenn Sr., Teen Librarian, are now part of the Madison Public Library team. McDaniel previously worked at Meadowood Neighborhood Center and Glenn has served as a Library Assistant. McDaniel shared her excitement about being a small part of the community, saying, "I am so excited to have Farrah and Will on board," said Goodman South Madison Library Director Jennifer Jeffress. "Farrah's enthusiasm and Will's connections will help build relationships with community partners and work with community groups."

"I came to the library profession late in life, after many years of figuring out what I wanted to be when I grew up," she said. "I have grateful to the Dream Bus lead and supporting donors that make pop."

Making Justice Programming Ramps Up

Madison Public Library’s work with at-risk and court-involved teens has figured out how to emphasize the benefits of virtual workshops but can offer workshops remotely. “I feel like a lot of our artists now can be reached in a way that might not have been possible when they were in person,” said Teen Services Librarian Jesse Vieau, who coordinates the programming. “I’m constantly impressed by the quality of the virtual workshops. It’s a wonderful way to connect with people and help them find their voices.”

Franklin will supply the last credit he needs to graduate. Vieau says Franklin’s experiences will inspire future Making Justice students to pursue careers in the field of justice. “He will inspire others to pursue a career in监狱 education, even in this virtual age,” Vieau said.

Franklin is just one of many students who have figured out how to work remotely. “I’ve been impressed by the way people have adapted to work through the virtual workshops,” Vieau said. “It has been amazing to see how flexible people can be.”

“Our mission is to provide the best possible service to the community,” Vieau said. “We have been able to do that through virtual programming.”

“Making Justice offers a way for teens to explore their identity and make choices that will inspire future Making Justice programming,” Vieau said. “We are grateful to the Library Foundation, the Wisconsin Book Festival, and all of our partners for supporting this important work.”

Libraries Play Important Role in Election

Madison Public Library played a valuable role in the general election. Its community center at Madison Clerk’s Office by providing space for its locations for voter registration, early voting, absences, ballot dropoff and polling places. The Dream Bus mobile library assisted the City of Madison Clerk’s Office by providing mobile voting services to seven locations throughout the City of Madison in addition to the Clerk’s Office.

“This winter, Madison Public Library will continue to offer services to the community through the Dream Bus,” said Amy Winkleman, Director of Madison Public Library. “We are grateful to the Dream Bus lead and supporting donors that make this service possible.”

The Dream Bus is an important part of Madison Public Library’s mission to provide library services to all residents of Madison, regardless of their ability to access a physical library. The Dream Bus allows the library to reach out to the community in ways that are not possible through our traditional branches.

Two new librarians joined the staff of Goodman South Madison Library this winter.

Gains Two New Librarians

- Farrah McDaniel, Young Adult Services Librarian
  - A Madison native who spent most of her life in the city, McDaniel has spent the past 13 years with the Madison Public Library. She first worked at the Quinby Public Library in Quinby, Ga., as an Adult Services Librarian.
  - “I come to the library profession late in life, after many years of figuring out what I wanted to be,” she said. “I have always enjoyed helping people, and as the last vestige of free space, the public library has the ability to transform lives. I am so grateful for this opportunity to work with community groups and partner with community organizations.”
  - McDaniel’s role will be to build relationships with the community through reference services, outreach, and programming through our community partnerships.

- Will Glenn Sr., Teen Librarian
  - Born and raised in the inner city of Milwaukee, Glenn moved to Madison in 2015. He was hired through Madison Public Library as “quite a ride”: He sat on the floor, served as a library assistant, and now the dream has come full circle in becoming the first male African-American Library Assistant, and now the dream has come full circle in becoming the first male African-American Teen Librarian in the Madison system. He was a teen who would always enjoy helping people, and as the last vestige of free space, the public library has the ability to transform lives. I am so grateful for this opportunity to work with community groups and partner with community organizations.

Dream Bus Adapts Service

The Dream Bus is partnering with Madison School Community Partnership (MSCP) and the University of Wisconsin-Madison Extension to launch a knock-on-the-door delivery program to coordinate in-school education or after-school care. Community centers will make books available to all center visitors to use on site.
